Pembroke, ON - Tuesday, October 8, 2019 – The Canadian Institute of Forestry/Institut forestier du Canada (CIF-IFC) is pleased to announce Dr. Lori Daniels of Vancouver, BC and the CIF-IFC Vancouver Section as the 2019 recipient of the Canadian Forestry Scientific Achievement Award. The award was presented at the 2019 CIF-IFC Annual Awards Banquet held on October 7, 2019 at the Germania Club in Pembroke, ON.

“This award recognizes individuals who have made innovative and outstanding achievements in forestry research in Canada,” mentioned Luc M. Rainville, President, CIF-IFC, “recognition can be for developing new practices, processes, or techniques, or for demonstrating the practical applications of research in forestry. The award has the objective of encouraging innovation, exploration, application, and excellence in forest research.”

Dr. Daniels is a Professor with the Department of Forest and Conservation Sciences at the University of British Columbia. Dr. Daniels’ research strives to advance fundamental scientific knowledge on forest dynamics. Her research characterizes how natural disturbances, humans and climate interact to drive temperate forest dynamics and resilience. As a recognized figure in the interpretation of wildfire for the general public, along with her work as a fire science researcher, she has greatly contributed to raising public awareness on wildfires, safety and climate change. She has given countless interviews and has a major presence in both professional and public outreach. She is also considered a world leader in both dendrochronology and forest ecology. Through this work she has made an outstanding contribution to the sustainability of our forest resources.

Formed in 1908, the CIF-IFC is the national voice of forest practitioners and many others with a professional interest in forestry. The Institute’s 19 sections strive to provide national leadership in forestry, promote competency among forestry professionals, and foster public awareness of Canadian and international forestry issues.
